SELECTED CONSULTANCY ASSIGNMENTS:

Labour Market and Fisheries Sector

Socio economic indicators in the fisheries. Within the framework of the Common Fisheries Policy, development of socio-economic indicators in order appreciate the relative weight of the fishery sector in the areas dependent on fishing and to evaluate the impact of various management measures. Comparison of the situations in the various fishing zones. Client: European Commission Directorate General Fisheries. 2002-ongoing.

Statistics on employment in the fisheries sectors of Austria, Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands, Ireland and the UK. Evaluations of the employment statistics of the respective EU member states as part of the process of harmonising data at the EU level. Client: Eurostat, 2000-2001.

Transport Economics

Regional Balkans Infrastructure Study. Definition of a method for assessing investments projects and selecting investments projects across transport modes. The method shall also be adequate for the comparison of alternatives. The method will be subsequently applied for the preparation of short-term investment plans in five Balkan countries. Client: European Commission, 2002 ongoing.

Consultancy services for preliminary Engineering Investigations and Conceptual Design Study for the Kuwait City – Subiyah Causeway Project. Economic assessment will be prepared for different alignment alternatives (of app. 30 km lengths) connecting Kuwait City to a future new town on the opposite site of Kuwait Bay. The assessment includes, e.g. traffic user costs for users of the causeway as well as travellers inside Kuwait City. Client: The State of Kuwait, 2002 ongoing.

Review of the economic appraisal methods for transport projects for different European countries in order to assist the Danish Ministry of Transport in a revision of the current method. The focus is on the economic foundation of the method, the value of time and other road-users benefits, valuation of externalities and the application of method. Responsible for the study in France, Holland and United-Kingdom. Client: Danish Transport Ministry, 2002.

New methods entailing the calculation the human costs of accidents. Responsible for the international comparison. Client: Danish Road Directorate, 2001.

Assessment of Traffic Figures and Economic Evaluation of the D8 motorway (Czech Republic). The project provided an assessment of the future traffic and the economic impact of opening the 807 section (to the German border) of the D8 motorway in the Czech Republic. COWI was sub-consultant to Prago, Responsible for the Economic Evaluation. Client: Czech Road and Motorway Directorate. 2001.

Evaluation of Welfare Measures in the Transport Sector, as a part of a multi-disciplinary research project integrating the fields of transport economics and political decision support models (TEAM) for infrastructure investment evaluation. The project is carried out in co-operation with the Danish Technical University and the Economic Institute at the University of Copenhagen. The project explored the theoretical background behind the measurement of welfare in partial analyses. The application of equivalent variation versus consumer surplus was analysed. Recommendations for practical implementations were made. Client: The Danish Transport Council, 2000-2001.

Environmental Economics

Acceptability of water prices in the CEE and CIS countries. Development of public acceptability research toolkit for water and wastewater projects in Central and Eastern Europe. The Stated preference methodology is used to describe the users' willingness to pay as part of an economic and financing evaluation and feasibility study. Responsible for the case study of Brno (Czech Republic). Client: Danish Environmental Protection Agency and EBRD, 1999-2000.

Decision support tool for environmental financing strategies. Development of a computerised model for preparing environmental financing strategies, which includes possibilities for estimating investment, maintenance and operational costs of water supply, wastewater and municipal solid waste infrastructure at the national and regional level. Also, possibilities for annual projections for differences between environmental finance and the available finance (together with analysis of options to close potential financing gaps are included). Responsible for modelling the solid waste sector. Client: The Danish Ministry of Environment and Energy (DANCEE) and OECD EAP TF Secretariat, 1999-2000.

Environmental Financing Strategies. Support to the Ministry of Environment and Finance in Moldova and to the OECD EAP Task Force and DANCEE in their preparation for the Almaty Conference of Environment in October 2000. Responsible for the evaluation of the different scenarios and results from the Decision Support Tool. Client: The Danish Ministry of Environment and Energy (DANCEE) and OECD EAP TF Secretariat, 1999-2000.
